A SHORT COURSE IN READING THE BIBLE

A lot of Catholics don't read the Bible much. When we were growing up, Bible reading was not encouraged. If you had theological questions, the answers were in the Baltimore Catechism #2. Why would we pick up the Bible? It could only confuse us.

That's too bad.

The Bible is beautiful, inspiring, complex and sometimes challenging. It actually is a library of books. Some books are narratives with important themes; others are poetry or the gathering of the axioms of the prophets. In the New Testament, besides the four gospels, there's also the letters of Saint Paul and other apostles, the Acts of the Apostles (which is really Volume II of Luke's Gospel) and the Book of Revelation, which many people can't make any sense of.

If you want to read the Bible, you would do well to read it in the New American Bible, Revised Edition, which is an authorized Catholic translation of the biblical texts by scripture scholars done under the direction of the bishops. It's what you hear at Mass. It has a short introduction to each book of the Bible and its footnotes can help a reader who runs into difficult verses.

Let's say you want to read the book of the prophet Isaiah. The introduction will tell you that it is an anthology of poems composed chiefly by the great prophet, but also by disciples, some of whom came many years after Isaiah. So you will want to read the chapters as the poetry they are.

You read the Bible for inspiration, but its books were not written to you directly. Each, including the gospels, were written with a particular audience in mind. What was the inspired author wanting to communicate to his original audience? If, with a little study, you can figure that out, then you are much more likely be inspired yourself in the way the author intended.

For example, Mark's Gospel, which is the shortest and likely the first to be written, seems to have been written to people who did not realize that persecution was coming and that they should strengthen their faith in preparation. In it Jesus warns, "Be watchful! Be alert! You do not know when the time will come."

Then you can ask yourself, if my life were to come to an end soon or if Christ's second coming were to take place today, how prepared would I be? If I were to see the face of Christ, would I recognize it? Would I be ashamed of myself or grateful to see the one for whom I have been longing all my life? In other words, with a little study you can find much more in the texts than you could from a cursory reading.

Over the years it has been my practice to read a chapter a day until I finish a book. If I read more than a chapter, my mind tends to wander and then I have to go back and read what I missed. I am in 1 Corinthians now and plan to read 2 Corinthians after that. I will probably read one of the gospels next.

The complications in reading the Bible are what intrigues me. According to Genesis, God walked with Adam and Eve in the cool of the evening. Moses finds Yahweh in a burning bush. Psalm 22 is a lament by someone whom God had forsaken. The gospels indicate that Jesus called each of the apostles individually. Saint Paul met God on the road to Damascus and went on to preach the gospel to others across the Mediterranean region. That God is revealed is not in doubt, but revelation came in many forms. (Even Psalm 22; read it to the end and you'll see.)

If you haven't already, think about adding a chapter of the Bible to your daily prayers. I promise you won't be disappointed.

Msgr. Mike

CRS RICE BOWL/FAITH IN ACTION

How will you answer the call to love your neighbor this Lent? Your neighbors live across the street and across the country, across oceans and hemispheres. Catholic social teaching inspires and guides how we are to live and work in the world. In this principle, Life and Dignity of the Human Person, Jesus reminds us that we are all made in God's image and likeness and that every human being has a special value and a purpose. We need to care for each other so we can be the people God calls us to be. As millions of God's children flee war, persecution and poverty, Pope Francis, Caritas Internationalis, United States Conference of Catholic Bishops, Catholic Charities USA, and Catholic Relief Services invite you to share your neighbor's journey by walking with them in prayer and support.

Call for Volunteers

For our 2018 PSA, once our Diocesan goal is met, additional funds will be used here to enhance safety and security on our campus.

Fortunately, in July 2017 a Safety & Security Working Group was formed. We have a good set of subject-matter expert volunteers among the current members: Jan Cooper, Terry Cunningham, Tim Kimminal, Joe Lazzari, Don Miller, Tom Ryan and Dave Smith.

However, we are looking for additional volunteers with experience and expertise in medical (i.e. physician, nurse, paramedic), law enforcement (i.e. police, sheriff, fireman), and training (i.e. teacher, instructor). Please consider volunteering if you currently work in those jobs, or are retired from those professions.

The group meets every other Friday from 5:00-6:00 p.m., and the work is expected to take several months. If you are unable to volunteer directly but have experience and expertise in the required areas, perhaps you can consider being an on-call resource.

If you have questions, would like more information, or would like to volunteer, please contact Don Miller at don@corinium.com, or 562-430-2516 (home).
