WILD, DANGEROUS, UNFETTERED AND FREE

On this Pentecost Sunday we do well to consider the nature of God.

“Every Catholic is raised to be devout and love the Gospels, but I was spoiled by the Old Testament,” says the writer Louise Erdrich. “I was very young when I started reading, and the Old Testament sucked me in. I was at the age of magical thinking and believed sticks could change to serpents, a voice might speak from a burning bush, angels wrestled with people.” Anyone who has spent time reading the Hebrew Bible will agree with her. You start to ask, “Where is God going to show up next? What else will he tell the prophet to proclaim?”

It doesn't get any clearer with the birth of Jesus. The gospels offer no dramatic framing for it. Joseph and Mary were on a journey to be counted in the Roman census, a trip they had to make or face the wrath of their oppressors, and the time for Jesus' birth arrives and he is born in a stable or a cave—we're not sure—but not a palace or temple or the kind of place where people will stand up and take notice. Only shepherds come over to see what had happened. At length kings or wise men—we're not sure—made a pilgrimage to see the newborn, bearing gifts. Then life went on until Jesus was an adult and began his saving ministry by being baptized by John. When, at last, hints and rumors swirled around that he was claiming to be the King of the Jews, the religious authorities conclude against him, had him arrested and turned over to Pilate who quickly had him crucified. Nobody thought that this was what divinity looked like: a naked man dying between two criminals. After his resurrection Jesus appeared before his disciples to explain to them that what had happened to him was how he had saved them; yes, after all that time with him, they needed remedial lessons.

The most dramatic scene in the Bible is the arrival of the Holy Spirit when the disciples were all together. They heard the sound of a strong driving wind which came in and filled the place. Tongues of fire followed which rested on each one of them. Most importantly they were filled with the Holy Spirit; note the verb. The Holy Spirit did not appear before their eyes but filled the disciples, enabling them to proclaim the same good news that Jesus had preached. (That's why many call Pentecost the birthday of the Church.) But I suspect it was quite unsettling to the fearful disciples when it came to pass. Was the building burning down? Jesus was an outward sign made of flesh and blood but now God was revealed as an inner gift to the disciples.

We were taught in the seminary that God was not another thing among all the things of creation; there is not Lucy and Rickie, Fred and Ethel, and then God, followed by.... Yet, we believe God has revealed himself as One who is Father, Son and Holy Spirit. Every few years I consider the mystery of the Holy Trinity, but I usually am more confused at the end of it than when I started. It's the kind of thinking that can give me a headache.

I ran into a great sentence of the great American scripture scholar, Walter Brueggemann, that helped me gain a perspective: “We live our lives before the wild, dangerous, unfettered and free character of the living God.” Instead of trying to explain it all theologically, he described how we experience God and he was right to do so.

The purpose of this collection is to assist parishes within our Diocese that exhibit ongoing needs that cannot be paid for by their ordinary income and have urgent needs such as repairs and maintenance. All money donated to this collection is put into a restricted fund that is administered by a group consisting of laity and clergy of the Diocese. Parishes with needs apply for grants from this fund to be used for their specific needs. Please write "Parishes in Collaboration" or "second collection" on your check to insure it is properly recorded.

SPIRITUAL BOOK CLUB

For the Thursday, June 7th meeting at noon in the Parish Center we are reading a book about a few Old Testament women, David's three wives: Michal, Abigail and Bathsheba. The book is "Queenmaker: a novel of King David's Queen" by India Edghill. Each chapter begins with a scripture reference, e.g. 1 Samuel 18:8. Please read that bit from your bible along with the book remembering the book is a work of fiction by the author. This easy-to-read book should make for a great discussion. All are welcome.

OUR MISSION:

Saint Anne Church exists to help us become disciples of Jesus Christ who connect with God, grow in faith, and serve in love.

BLESSED VIRGIN MARY, MOTHER OF THE CHURCH

Join us to celebrate this new feast day on Monday, May 21st at the 9:00 a.m. Mass.

The Vatican announced that the Church will celebrate the Blessed Virgin Mary in her role as "Mother of the Church" every year on the Monday after Pentecost, as a way to foster genuine Marian piety and the maternal sense of the Church.

The Marian title of "Mother of the Church," was given to the Blessed Mother by Bl. Pope Paul VI at the Second Vatican Council. Pope John Paul II, in the Catechism of the Catholic Church, stated that overall the title indicates the Blessed Virgin Mary's maternity of Christ's faithful, as deriving from her maternity of Christ in that "Mary is present in the Church as the Mother of Christ, and at the same time as that Mother whom Christ, in the mystery of Redemption, gave to humanity in the person of the Apostle John."

Pope Francis has decreed that the ancient devotion to the Blessed Virgin Mary, under the title of Mother of the Church be inserted into the Roman Calendar.
