BEFORE THE GREAT MYSTERY

Thank God for caller-ID. You see, I have a loquacious friend. He's a very nice guy but he can be long-winded and some days I just don't have the time for it. What he says is usually interesting enough; lots of people tell him thought-provoking things (when they get a chance to get a word in, I suppose) and he tells me about what they have had to say, or something he read in the newspaper, or whether or not he is enjoying the novel he is currently reading (he has given me lots of good reading recommendations over the years.) If he was boring, I'd have long ago stopped his blabbing, but he's not. But short he is never.

I have a couple of other good friends whom I have to draw out. Just asking, "How are you doing?" does not get the conversational ball rolling very far. Their answers often consist of one or two words, "Fine," "Okay," "No complaints." "Tell me what you have been doing," can elicit, "Not much," or "Just the usual," or "I've been busy." Yet with them, particularly when we are sitting on the patio watching the colors of the sky change as the sun goes down, a little silence is welcome. It often reminds of Saint Peter when he told Jesus, "It is good for us to be here."

When I was young there always seemed to be so much to talk about. Everything was so new, we had to talk about it to make sure what we were describing was real. Can it be that people act in a way so different from the ways I was taught to act? Why would someone want to do this or that? It wasn't what I wanted. Making a friend was the door to a new universe; you were freely given a glimpse into how another person experiences his or her life, how he or she values this but not so much that. You are influenced by the other's enthusiasms and opinions and you get to share your own.

Later old friends can almost finish each other's sentences: "You remember that time when the car broke down?"

"You mean when we were in the desert going to...?"

Where were we going?"

"To Phoenix, of course."

"That's right, to Phoenix. Is that the time we watched thunder clouds build up crossing the desert from left to right and it stormed down on us, just as we got under where they were?"

"No that's when we were on 395 going to June Lake."

After such a long time almost everything has been said among such friends so all you need to do is say the right words to conjure up a memory.

Few individual conversations are momentous, though when you are young they can seem so. What I remember is the bond that we formed over the years, talking about this and that, wondering about how our lives took unexpected turns or how a slice of startling words, heard at the right moment, sent us spinning into a new but welcome orbit.

It reminds me of what Einstein once said to his friend, "You and I never cease to stand like curious children before the great mystery into which we were born."

Msgr. Mike

OUR MISSION:

Saint Anne Church exists to help us become disciples of Jesus Christ who connect with God, grow in faith, and serve in love.

GOD'S WORK

We are so busy! Most of us have more than one job to do, and we never seem to have enough time. We are workers, volunteers, parents, friends, and most of us are more than one thing at a time. But which of these is the work of God? We seldom view our ordinary work as being the work of God. We may think that we have to be ministers or priests, missionaries or charity workers, engaged full-time in works formally identified as being "God's work." But everything we do with a faithful heart and with love for others is God's work. We each have our own role to fill in the world, and many gifts are necessary. We cannot always see the direct connection of our daily work to the plan of God. But we trust and we believe that God leads us to do what is needed, where it is needed. What is "God's work?" "This is the work of God, that you believe in the one he sent" (John 6:29). Copyright © J. S. Paluch Co., Inc.

RCIA

Every year adults are welcomed into the Catholic community through the Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults. If you are not baptized and recognize a need for spirituality in your life, a baptized Catholic or baptized into another religion but never received any formal religious education, a Catholic seeking to increase the knowledge of your faith, RCIA classes will provide faith development beginning from where you are in your journey right now. You are invited to explore your faith to make an informed decision about entering the Catholic Church through RCIA. St. Anne will not offer RCIA classes this year, however, St. Hedwig invites everyone interested in learning more about the Catholic Faith and/or being initiated into the Catholic Church to join their classes. Please contact OUR Parish office at 562-431-0721 for an application and consultation appointment with Fr. Ben.

NEW MISSALETTES

Our Seasonal Missalettes are a valuable worship resource for use during our masses. We prayerfully request that our missalettes are NOT removed from our Church so they will continue to be available for all parishioners.
