MARTYRS

In 2015, 21 Egyptian Christians were beheaded on the beach in Sirte, Libya by members of Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant. The murderers put photos and a video of their gruesome massacre up on YouTube to shock the world, and the world was indeed shocked. The video entitled, “a message signed with blood to the nation of the cross,” was a clear call to arms of Muslims against Christians.

A new book about the deaths has been written by a German author, Martin Mosebach, but his focus is on the slain, not the slaying. It's entitled, “The 21, A journey into the Land of Coptic Martyrs.” Mosebach visited the martyrs' families in El-Aour, Egypt. He discovered that the first response to the news about their fathers and husbands was not a desire for revenge or a call for government action. Mosebach reported that their grief was mitigated by joy. The video gave them closure for they had not known what had happened to them when they disappeared forty three days before, but “we now have a martyr in heaven and must rejoice,” he was told. They built shrines in their homes, gathered relics, composed hymns and depicted the deceased wearing crowns. Then, with help from the government and the support of their bishop, they constructed a vast pilgrimage church to which the martyrs' bodies returned and could be venerated by visitors.

These men had been construction workers. Their lives were as ordinary as any of ours are. But their families attest that long before their loved ones were murdered, their lives were marked by prayer, devotions, and bible memorizations. Some in the West thought of them as victims, men in the wrong place at the wrong time, people used for political advantage. That is not how the Copts felt about it. Seeing the video, Coptic Christians witnessed the sacrifice of martyrs. On 21 February 2015 the pope of the Coptic Orthodox Church, Pope Tawadros II (yes, there is more than one pope in the world!) announced that the 21 murdered Copts would be commemorated as martyr saints on the 8th Amshir of the Coptic calendar, which is February 15 in ours.

Pope Francis has pointed out that while they were being slain, “They only said ‘Jesus help me ...’ The blood of our Christian brothers is testimony that cries out. Be they Catholic, Orthodox, Copts, Lutherans, it doesn't matter: They're Christian!”

Saint Anne Church exists to help us become disciples of Jesus Christ who connect with God, grow in faith, and serve in love.

RELIGIOUS RETIREMENT FUND

Our second collection today is for the Retirement Fund for Religious. Many senior Catholic sisters, brothers, and religious order priests spent years working in Catholic schools, hospitals, and agencies for little or no pay. Today, religious communities often do not have enough savings to meet retirement and eldercare needs. Your gift today helps provide medications, nursing care and more for tens of thousands of elderly religious. It also helps ensure younger members can continue the good works of their elders. Please give generously.

SAINT JUAN DIEGO (1474-1548)

DECEMBER 9

How well Mary's own words describe Juan Diego: "God has cast down the mighty from their thrones and lifted up the lowly" (Luke 1:52). Through him, for the diverse peoples of the Americas, indigenous and immigrant, the Mother of God became known as their Mother, too. Cuauhtlatzin, his given name, means "One Who Speaks Like an Eagle," and Juan Diego faithfully delivered the Virgin's request that a church be built at Tepeyac where she had appeared to him. To the skeptical bishop's request for a sign, Our Lady showed Juan Diego roses blooming through stony ground, despite winter's cold. When he unfolded his tilma to present them to the bishop, imprinted there was Mary's image! Her blue sash and the flower over her womb were traditional Aztec symbols of pregnancy and new life. But her features were those of a mestiza, indicating mixed Aztec-European heritage. Thus to peoples too easily prone to a "clash of cultures," Our Lady of Guadalupe remains the enduring icon of unity-in-diversity, the fruit of our one baptism into Jesus, her Son. —Peter Scagnelli, Copyright © J.
